Macroscopic Solutions, LLC is the developer and sole source provider of the Macropod Pro imaging system product line.

Among the various components, Macroscopic Solutions provides software licenses for an academic based 3D modeling software called Agisoft Metashape. This software uses 2D color photographs taken from different perspectives and converts these images to 3D models. The software is regarded as industry leading and is provided by Macroscopic Solutions upon request by the end-user. The software is mainly used to enhance digital content used for scientific discovery and observation.

Agisoft Metashape is headquartered in Russia and has made the following statement on the Russia-Ukraine crisis.

"We are aware of the current situation as almost everyone in the country, as it concerns us much more than most of other countries. I believe that we are all in solidarity that the conflict must be resolved peacefully as soon as possible. Here in Agisoft we continue the development process of Metashape and delivery of the licenses and technical support to our users."

Agisoft LLC"

The software is only provided upon request of the end-user and is not provided unless otherwise requested. Agisoft provides educational discounts because of the significance it has in research and education.

In addition, Macroscopic Solutions has reached out to the Office of Foreign Assets Control (OFAC) and performed a Sanctions List Search concerning Agisoft. Agisoft is not sanctioned, and Macroscopic Solution is performing all necessary due diligence to confirm operations are legal.

I certify that the attributes referred to in this letter are true and that Macroscopic Solutions, LLC is the sole source provider of the Macropod technology.

Sincerely,

Mark R Smith
